

Sophia Matilda Palmer Comtesse De Franqueville, 1852-1915: A Memoir (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Sophia Matilda Palmer Comtesse De Franqueville, 1852-1915: A Memoir

This book owes its origin to recollections of my sister which I put together at the request, and for the use, of my brother-in-law, the Comte de Franqueville. It owes its publication to the hope felt by many who loved her, that the story of her life might inspire other souls struggling heavenwards, just as the force of her example and influence helped all with whom she had to do, whilst she was on earth among us. If this hope be fulfilled, this little contribution to the records of human experiences will not have been added uselessly. I desire to offer my thanks to all the friends whose counsel and help have been of great assistance to me in various ways in the compilation of this Memoir. Especially do I recognize the gratitude which I owe to Lady Robert Cecil, Mademoiselle Mercedes de Gournay, Lady Grey, Messieurs Macmillan, Mrs Leigh Pemberton, Miss Edith Rickards, Lord Stanmore, Lord Tennyson, and my sister, Lady Waldegrave.
