When the Animal Liberation Front places a poster in the Martha Washington quilt shop window reading SUPPORT TURKEYS LIB.STOP THE SHAMEFUL SLAUGHTER, shopkeeper Elizabeth Blair is incredulous that she has been singled out. A quick-witted widow who traded her native Turkey Creek, Virginia, for a seemingly genteel and charming English life selling patchwork quilts in Bath, Elizabeth is determined to stop ALFs ridiculous terrorist attacks and turns to her dashing private eye neighbor, Max Shepard, to help her solve this puzzle. When the local wealthy, tart-tongued, know-it-all Joanna Drew turns up murdered all leads point to another terrorist attack. This time, Elizabeth is unconvinced about ALFs involvement; she joins the prestigious Wetherburn Museum of quilting, owned and run by the Drews, as a guest lecturer to see what she can discover. As the tight Drew family stitching begins to unravel, revealing a tangled web of interrelationships, Elizabeth and Max must hold things together before Joannas killer makes turkey tracks for them in Lizbie Browns lethal and literate quilting mystery.
